Tenure of Office.

While the CITIZEN is, and always has been, uncompromisingly Republican, yet it deems it the duty of the Republican, as well as of the Democratic press, to uphold the administration of our country in every thing that it does worthy of support. Believing this, the CITIZEN will always be as ready to commend the good deeds and condemn the evil deeds of President Cleveland, as if he were in political faith a Republican.

We have the pleasant duty to day of commending a good action, in the re-appointment of Henry G. Pearson, as Postmaster of New York. This re-appointment was fully deserved by Mr. Pearson, and marks at least one step forward in the march of civil service reform, being a recognition of the principle that intelligent and faithful service to the Republic is the measure of fitness. Could President Cleveland but see, that the principle illustrated in this appointment, should be carried out to its logical conclusion in all appointments, he would do more to immortalize himself and divorce public business from politics than he can accomplish in any other way. What possible difference can it make to the country, whether the mails, in its thousands of towns, are distributed by Republican or Democratic hands, if the hands do the work well, and the office is not used as a political machine?

It can, and does make no difference, and yet, as their terms expire, the present postmasters are being replaced by new men, as far as we can see, solely for political reasons. It cannot be alleged that these new men are, or can be for some time, as efficient as the old, and hence the public business must necessarily suffer. Is this civil service reform?

It is answered by the Democrats, that the Republicans have now all the offices, and that it is easy for them to preach civil service reform, and security of tenure. This may be all true, and not affect the truth of the propositions that we advance in the least.

The civil service of this country should be divorced from politics, and made non-partisan. Filling the offices equally with Democrats and Republicans is making the civil service bi-partisan, not non partisan. The qualification for retention or appointment should be fitness solely, without regard to politics. This is the standard recognized in the retention of Pearson. Why stop there? Why not carry the principle to its legitimate conclusion, and apply it to all post-offices, large and small?

New Capital vs. New County.

The recent fire in the State House prompted the citizens of Newark to make an effort to secure the removal of the Capital from Trenton to that city. With commendable public spirit the leading men of Newark called a meeting and took measures to secure the donation of a building site on Clinton Hill and a liberal subscription towards the cost of the new buildings. A bill was introduced in the Assembly to effect the change and was pushed through the early stages with speed and without injurious amendments, but when it came upon its final passage it failed for the want of one vote, that of Mr. Bell, of Essex.

Just what induced Mr. Bell to oppose a measure which was favored by all his colleagues from Essex is uncertain, but it is charged that he hoped in this way to secure the aid of South Jersey Senators to pass the bill creating the new county of Carteret out of the township of Essex, leaving the city of Newark a county by itself.

If this was Mr. Bell's plan it has failed to accomplish its purpose, for the Members of the Assembly from Essex, angered at his defection, at once proposed and secured the passage of a resolution withdrawing the New County Bill from the Senate, and having thus secured its return from the Senate, will probably kill it in the House.

This condition of affairs is greatly to be regretted, for the act creating the county of Carteret should have been acted upon without becoming complicated with the question of the removal of the Capital.

A new county would probably be as beneficial to the townships as the removal of the State House would prove to be to the city of Newark. It is true that the Newark members opposed the county bill, and thus insured the hostility of Mr. Bell to their pet scheme, but it would have been much wiser if all the Essex members had worked together for the two measures rather than to slaughter both of them.

From present appearances it looks as if the seat of government would remain on the Delaware and as if the townships of Essex would be retained to help elect Republican candidates for office who are not able to carry their own city of Newark.

A Rare Musical Treat.

A rare treat has been provided for the music-loving public in the entertainment to be given in the First Church on Wednesday of next week. From many sources we hear high commendations of the artists engaged. The opportunities offered to our people to enjoy good music without a disagreeable journey to the neighboring cities, are so far, that it were well even at some personal inconvenience to attend such a concert. Mlle. Zelie de Lussan is well known both in Newark and New York, where she has frequently sung. Of her appearance on March 28, 1885, the New York Times speaks as follows:

"Mlle. de Lussan, one of our youngest and most popular songresses, gave a concert at Chickering Hall last evening, in presence of a numerous and brilliant audience. The affair was most successful, from an artistic as well as a social standpoint, and had all the encores been responded to, the last number on the programme would have been reached toward the small hours. Mlle. de Lussan was in excellent form, and her reception was of the most cordial kind. An air from Gounod's 'Reine de Saba,' a descriptive song entitled, 'The Bells of Lynn,' by M. R. Macfarlane, and a duet with Mr. C. Thompson, called 'Canto d' Amore' were assigned to her; and of course the listeners insisted upon the performer's re-appearance after each piece. The pianist of the occasion was Mr. S. B. Mills."

Mme. Chatterton-Bohrer comes to us highly recommended as a harpist, who has acquired musical fame both in Europe and America. In addition to the notices already published, we give two others, the first clipped from the New York Mail, the other from the New York Music and Drama, of November 18th, 1882:

"Her tone is full and round, her touch delicate in the piano passages, and remarkably vigorous in the forte passes, while the instrument in her hands has a considerable singing quality."

"Mme. Chatterton-Bohrer in her performance upon the harp displayed the possibilities of that instrument; her tone, at times sonorous and powerful, was rendered even more so by her delicate shading, producing the finest effects. We had hardly believed the harp capable of such power and expression. Of the concerted music the 'Ariosa' (Handel), for harp, violon, violoncello and organ, was beautifully rendered. This concert was one of the most enjoyable of the season."

A single notice of Mr. Henry Carter, the organist, will suffice. It is from the Williamsport Daily Gazette, of January 9, 1885:

"The organ concert given at St. Paul's Lutheran church last evening by Mr. Henry Carter was attended by a large and appreciative audience. It was in the highest sense a musical treat, and all who were present are prepared to admit that they were not only pleased, but were as well surprised at the possibilities that an organ possesses in the hands of such a master. To criticise Mr. Carter's playing, or to define the beauty, power and expression with which the various pieces on the programme were rendered, will not be attempted. The storm, fantasia, entitled in the programme, Calm, Storm and Thanksgiving,' was one of the most striking pieces performed during the evening—wind, thunder, rain and it might be added, sunshine, are represented in their turn, and were wonderfully well expressed. The 'March from Tannhaeuser,' as played by Mr. Carter, proves that Wagner, much as he is misrepresented, could write a tune—for a more tuneful and expressive movement is seldom heard."

We are thus particular to inform our readers of the pleasures in store for them, that none may fail to attend for lack of knowledge. A good entertainment, well patronized, is doubly enjoyable—as the enthusiasm of the company increases the zeal of the performers. It also insures large receipts, without which good performances are impossible. We bespeak the generous support of all lovers of good music.

Bosch's Pure Fruit Wine,

An Indispensable, Invigorating and Blood Strengthening Tonic.

For Medicinal & Communion Purposes.

NOTICE.—No time nor money has been spared in the effort of producing an unsurpassed native fruit wine of a full rich body and flavor, and of unquestionable purity. My object has been to supply a long-felt want in the community, a wine far superior to one-half of the imported wines, say nothing of the other half of base imitations manfactured in this country. A success of this kind is most flattering; it is not for making wine alone, but for being able to furnish a wholesome article to those who need it, who are under the physician's care, and where lives depend upon getting the pure article prescribed.

PRICE LIST of pure domestic fruit Wine, pressed by G. H. Bosch, East Orange, N. J.
